Curricula	<ol style="list-style-type: none"> <li>1. Mediterranean civilizations, institutions and territory</li> <li>2. Literatures, languages, cultures and knowledge in Mediterranean Europe</li> </ol>
Aims and topics	The PhD course aims at providing PhD students with the skills required to high quality research, as a result of a strong integration between "knowledge" and "know-how". The planned three-year course focuses on a plurality of themes, from the theoretical debate to the history of mentalities and thought, literary history, social-economic as well as political-institutional history. The course will enable PhD students to conduct original research at a high scientific level, with a special concern for the analysis of the relations between Southern Italy and other countries and/or areas of European countries in the Mediterranean basin. The interest for the historical dynamics will be accompanied by a special focus on the artistic, linguistic, literary, philosophical, and generally cultural experience. Within both curricula, the PhD student will get, on one hand, the ability to exploit all possible sources for historical reconstruction (historical, archaeological, linguistic, literary, artistic, philosophical, as well as audiovisual documents); moreover, he will learn to consider the intellectual expressions in their historical dimension.
